Hundreds of employers of all sizes and from all industries each year advertise vacancies, deliver presentations or network with our students; we are in the top 15 universities targeted by employers†.

The information shown here is from the Higher Education Statistics Agency (HESA) Graduate Outcomes survey for 2019/20 and 2020/21 leavers combined. It is the biggest UK annual social survey and captures the perspectives and current status of recent graduates, 15 months after leaving university.

Education with Psychology is a social science course that covers education, psychology, politics and sociology. Students can study the social and developmental contexts of childhood and youth in depth and develop the skills needed to positively impact young peoples' lives. Graduates from this course develop knowledge which can be applied to many complex real-life situations affecting childhood and youth such as education, mental health, and family life. As a result, graduates go on to a wide variety of different fields. Some choose to continue study and specialise in clinical or educational psychology; teaching or related roles is another common route, whilst others enter mental health, family outreach work or the charity sector.
