Diane Aderyn has been at the University of Bath since 1993. She began her financial career in commercial accountancy, moving to the University of Manchester in 1984. She rose through a number of key financial posts and was appointed Deputy Bursar at Manchester in 1990, a position she held for three years before winning promotion to the University of Bath as Director of Finance.

In her 20 years at Bath she has implemented financial structures that are innovative within the HE sector. She is a member of the Executive team of the University which is responsible for the day-to-day and strategic management of the institution and attends all committees within the University that have a financial role, the main ones being Council and Finance Committee. She is active on the British Universities Finance Directors Group and represents the University on the Board of Trustees of the Herschel House Museum.
