GENERAL INTRODUCTION

PROVENANCE

The material was donated by Lord Hylton in two instalments in 2014 and 2016.

BRIEF OUTLINE OF THE CAREER OF RAYMOND HERVEY JOLLIFFE, 5TH BARON HYLTON

Raymond Hervey Jolliffe was born on the 13th June 1932, the elder son of William George Hervey Jolliffe, 4th Baron Hylton, and Perdita Rose Mary Jolliffe (née Asquith), Lady Hylton. He was educated at Eton College, Windsor, Berkshire, and graduated from Trinity College, University of Oxford, with a history degree in 1955. Between 1960 and 1962 he served as Assistant Private Secretary to the Governor-General of Canada. He succeeded to the title of Baron Hylton in 1967.

Lord Hylton has been an independent (cross bench) member of the House of Lords since 1982. He was one of 92 hereditary peers elected to remain in the House of Lords after the passing of the House of Lords Act 1999. He is an active participator in parliamentary debate with a long-standing interest in conflict resolution, reconciliation and rehabilitation. He is a co-founder of the Ammerdown Centre, an ecumenical Christian retreat and conference centre in Somerset, committed to dialogue for improved relations between the world faiths and for peace building through non-violent methods.

For more than five decades Lord Hylton has worked with a broad range of national and international non-governmental and charitable organisations to protect human rights around the world. He has travelled widely, forming connections with communities in areas affected by military, political, religious and ethnic conflict. He has also served on a number of All-Party Parliamentary Groups to further his work and help shape relevant UK policy and legislation.

Lord Hylton's family landholdings are mainly in Somerset. He has always taken a keen interest in the surrounding area, engaging with local housing, farming and rural land management bodies as well as parish and district councils.

Lord Hylton is a member of the University of Bath Court.

DESCRIPTION OF THE COLLECTION

The material is presented in the order given in the contents list. It covers the period 1945 to 2013. As far as possible the arrangement of the Collection follows the original order imposed by Lord Hylton.

The Collection includes a small amount of personal and biographical material but comprises mainly correspondence, reports, working notes and briefing papers covering a range of topics associated with Lord Hylton's work. These include peace building and mediation, religious freedom, international criminal law, forced labour, refugees, asylum, domestic slavery, trafficking and prisons, as well as individual cases of human rights infringement or violation.

The Collection contains material relating to Lord Hylton's interests in the UK, but is global in scope, also documenting his involvement in international human rights enforcement and in developing responses to dangerous or deteriorating situations in areas of persistent unrest such as Israel/Palestine, Iraq, Chechnya, North Korea and Pakistan.

Lord Hylton's parliamentary activity - his questions, speeches and correspondence with MPs and fellow members of the House of Lords - is well-represented. The Collection also contains material relating to his collaboration with campaigning groups and other organisations, charities, politicians and religious leaders in the UK and abroad.

Material relating to Lord Hylton's involvement in the Northern Ireland peace process is held by the Institute of Irish Studies at the University of Liverpool.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

We are grateful to Lord Hylton for making this material available.

SECTION C

HUMAN RIGHTS

C.1-C.84

This section contains correspondence, reports, notes, newspaper cuttings and briefing papers relating to Lord Hylton's interest in human rights and his work as a member of the All-Parliamentary Human Rights Group. The material covers all aspects of human rights including slavery, religious freedom, torture and the use by UK authorities of information obtained by torture, international criminal law, forced labour, treatment of detainees and the death penalty, as well as individual cases of human rights infringement and violation. It is global in scope documenting Lord Hylton's involvement in international human rights enforcement and in developing responses to national situations in countries such as Iraq, Chechnya, Afghanistan, Nigeria, Nepal, Bulgaria, Philippines, North Korea and Pakistan.

Divided into a main general series with several accompanying country-specific series, the material dates from 1999 to 2010. Within each series the presentation is chronological and preserves as far as possible the filing system used by Lord Hylton.

SECTION D ASYLUM & REFUGEES D.1-D.72

This section contains correspondence, reports, notes, newspaper cuttings, speeches and briefing papers relating to Lord Hylton's interest in asylum and refugees. In the 1980s Lord Hylton became a friend and supporter of the Medical Foundation for Victims of Torture. He was a signatory of Charter 87 for Refugees and has played an active role in parliamentary debate and in the formulation of governmental policy on immigration and asylum for decades.

The material covers topics including immigration removal centres, employment of refugees, prosecution of asylum seekers, treatment of unaccompanied children, migration, deportation and the long-term impact of detention on women and families. It documents Lord Hylton's involvement with various charitable organisations and local campaigning groups as well as the UK Border Agency (UKBA) and the Home Office.

Divided into a main general series with several smaller, accompanying, subject-specific series, the material dates from 1987 to 2011. The arrangement preserves as far as possible the filing system used by Lord Hylton.

D.1-D.10 CHARTER 87 FOR REFUGEES 1987-1990

This sub-section contains correspondence, reports, papers and notes relating to Charter 87 for Refugees. Co-founded and co-ordinated by Dr Louise Pirouet, Tom Unwin and Antonia Hunt, Charter 87 aimed to influence UK policy and practice at a time when legislation relating to asylum seekers and refugees was becoming increasingly restrictive. As a campaigning group, Charter 87 also helped individual refugees and contributed to a better general understanding of refugee-related issues. The Charter was signed by around 10,000 people, including several hundred politicians; Lord Hylton was a supporter and a founder signatory.

SECTION H GENETIC MODIFICATION H.1-H.12

This section contains correspondence, reports, briefings and press cuttings relating to Lord Hylton's interest in genetically modified plants. As a practising diary and arable farmer, he expressed concern about several aspects of governmental policy on genetic modification (GM) and played an active part in parliamentary debate on the matter.

The material dates from 1996 to 2006 and covers issues including regulatory frameworks governing the introduction of GM crops, the impact of GM crops on the environment and public health, the wider implications of genetic modification in terms of safety and the food chain, monitoring and testing of GM plants, the labelling of foodstuffs with GM ingredients, the use of pesticides, and the import of GM plants and products.

The presentation is chronological and preserves as far as possible the filing system used by Lord Hylton.

SECTION J ISRAEL/PALESTINE AND THE MIDDLE EAST J.1-J.134

This section contains correspondence, reports, notes, working papers and press cuttings relating to Lord Hylton's interests in Israel, Palestine and the Middle East. It documents his activities to foster and support peace initiatives, facilitate dialogue and raise awareness, both in the UK through publicity and parliamentary debate, and overseas through his work with organisations such as the Israel/Palestine Center for Research and Information, Joint Action for Israeli-Palestinian Peace, and Jews for Justice for Palestinians.

The material ranges in date from 1993 to 2012. Alongside the main subject of military conflict in Israel/Palestine, issues covered include international law, the enactment of United Nations resolutions, food aid, violence, security, ceasefire negotiations, terrorism and trade agreements.

The presentation is chronological and preserves as far as possible the filing system used by Lord Hylton. There is some overlap, particularly relating to human rights issues, with material in other sections of the Collection.

SECTION K EUROPE K.1-K.144

This section contains correspondence, reports, briefing papers, notes and press cuttings relating to Lord Hylton's interests and activities across Europe. It documents his work in various regions of military, political, religious and ethnic unrest, and his efforts to promote tolerance in volatile and disharmonious situations. The work involved campaigning at home in the UK, via parliament and non-governmental organisations, as well as regular travel to the affected regions. As a member of the British-Armenian All-Party Parliamentary Group, Lord Hylton was an international observer of presidential election procedures in the region of Nagorno-Karabakh. He also served as a member of the British-Russian All-Party Parliamentary Group.

The material ranges in date from 1980 to 2013. It covers topics including religious liberty and freedom of expression, bringing about dialogue between opposing groups, and the treatment of displaced and persecuted civilian populations.

The presentation is chronological and preserves as far as possible the filing system used by Lord Hylton. There is some overlap, particularly relating to human rights issues, with material in other sections of the Collection.

	This sub-section contains material relating to Turkey and its Kurdish population. It also includes a very small amount of material relating to Kurds living in other countries. Lord Hylton made numerous visits to eastern Turkey, on one occasion, in 1998, leading a British human rights delegation. He was involved in work to bring the sufferings of Kurdish people in Turkey to the attention of the international community through raising awareness and monitoring compliance with human rights treaties and protocols. From December 1999, when Turkey was officially recognised as a candidate for full membership of the European Union, this work was continued against a background of accession negotiations. In November 2016, in response to rule of law and human rights concerns, the European Parliament voted to suspend the negotiations.
