*Synopsis and academic coherence of programme

This programme enables students to develop an interdisciplinary approach to the analysis of social issues. The first year introduces students to social policy, sociology, economic, psychology, politics and research methods. Students continue to study compulsory units in research methods and choose other units from these five disciplines. The four-year degree adds a placement year that allows students experiential learning opportunities and possibility of applying their social science skills to a variety of real-life settings.

*Educational aims of the programme

- 1 To develop student's knowledge and understanding in social sciences, as set out in the intended learning outcomes, listed below.
- 2 To develop the general critical and analytical powers of the student.

- 3 To develop critical, analytical problem-based learning skills and the transferable skills to prepare the student for graduate employment or further study.
- 4 To enhance the development of the students' interpersonal skills.
- 5 To develop research skills with particular reference to those skills relating to investigation and analysis.
- 6 To provide the student with opportunities for collaborative learning with others.
- 7 To assist the student to develop the skills required for both autonomous and team work.

Structure and content of the programme (including potential stopping off points) (Append the relevant programme description (PD) form(s) and cross reference below) The degree is studied as a three-year full-time programme, or as a four-year programme with placement. 100% of the full-time programme will be University-based and study is undertaken at three levels (one for each year of study for the three-year programme). The programme is arranged on a semester basis (6 x 15 weeks). The programme is divided into study modules called units. Each unit has a credit value of 3 - 12, depending on the length of study and academic content, and according to subject and nature of learning. Each 6 credit unit represents 100 hours of student learning made up of lectures, tutorials, seminars, practical classes and workshops. Each level has an equivalent of 60 credits. The 4 year programme adds a one year placement (minimum 30 weeks) to be taken in the third year of study.

The study units within the programme, the levels at which they are studied, the credit ratings of the units for the award of BSc (Hons) Social Sciences are detailed in Appendix A (the programme description).). The table describes how the programme is structured in terms of the New Framework for Assessment (NFAAR). Information about Designated Essential Units (DEUs) and Designated Alternative Programmes (DAPs), and the definitions for parts and stages of programmes, are also available in the NFAAR, Appendix 2: Definitions.

Details of work placements / work-based learning / industrial training / study abroad requirements

In the four-year programme the placement is intended to provide practical experience in the application and usefulness of knowledge gained at the University. It enables students to develop personal skills in communication, planning and time management, problem solving and analytical skills, decision-making skills, and team working skills. It may also provide data for the final year dissertation and help students develop career plans. The placement is assessed in various ways (including placement visits, a ten-week placement report, a paper presented to the mid-year placement conference, a final placement report). These are required for the successful completion of the placement but do not contribute to the final degree classification.

Details of support available to students (e.g. induction programmes, programme information, resources)

University of Bath students attending programmes of study at the Claverton Campus are usually encouraged to stay in University halls of residence during their first year and will be supported in their transition into University life and study by Resident Tutors. These are postgraduate students or staff who live in the halls of residence and are responsible for the general welfare, health and safety and discipline of student residents.

Undergraduate students will be allocated a Personal Tutor, postgraduate taught students a course manager and postgraduate research students a supervisor who are responsible for monitoring and supporting the academic progress and general welfare of their students.

Staff in these roles will be able to respond to many of the questions and concerns raised by their students. However, there is also a range of specialist student support services that will offer both information and advice to support these staff working with their students, as well as take referrals to work more directly with the students. Students can also self-refer to these services.

These services can provide information, advice and support in relation to accommodation, emotional difficulties, assessment of needs and provision of support relating to disability, student funding, general welfare, academic problems, student discipline and complaints, careers, international students, spiritual matters, part time work, security and personal safety. The Students' Union can also provide advocacy for students. More information about these services can be accessed via: <http://www.bath.ac.uk/students/support/>.

There are also Medical and Dental Centres, and a Chaplaincy on campus that are very experienced in meeting the needs of a student population, as well as a University nursery and vacation play scheme to provide childcare for older children during the school holidays.

Summary of assessment and progression regulations

The Social Sciences programme is fully compliant with the University's New Framework for Assessment: Assessment Regulations (NFAAR). The NFAAR describes the rules for progression from one stage of the programme to the next (including supplementary assessment, and the extent of failure that can be condoned) as well as for the award of degrees. Students taking the Social Sciences programme will be assessed according to these rules; further information about the NFAAR is available at <http://www.bath.ac.uk/registry/nfa/index.htm>.

Indicators of quality and standards (e.g. professional accreditation)

To assure continuing excellence in its quality and standards, the University of Bath has a quality management framework including:

For more general information on each part of the framework, click on the links.

1. A Quality Assurance Code of Practice, and associated regulations and policies :
<http://www.bath.ac.uk/learningandteaching/cop/index.php>
2. A learning, teaching and quality committee structure which monitors quality and standards and instigates action for enhancement.
3. Staff development arrangements that assist staff in enhancing their own performance as educators, as researchers or as professional support services staff.

Students are involved in many of these processes, whereby their key perspectives and participation as citizens in the academic community are engaged in the 'informed Student Voice'.

For a fuller overview of the University's Quality Management framework see this summary document.

The Quality Assurance Agency (QAA) periodically reviews the quality of the University of Bath's Learning and Teaching performance.

At the last review by the QAA in November 2008, the University was given the highest grading available, that of 'Confidence', in the soundness of the University's current and likely future management of both the academic standards of its awards and the quality of learning opportunities available to students. The QAA's report can be seen at

<http://www.qaa.ac.uk/InstitutionReports/Reports/Pages/inst-audit-University-of-Bath-08.aspx>

Professional or industrial placements for a year are particularly supported at Bath by specialised staff.
