Synopsis and academic coherence of programme*

The BSc Management provides a foundation in the principal business and management functions. It further enables students to develop advanced knowledge and skills in a selection of those functions while setting them within the wider context of current business practice.

Year 1 introduces a range of management activities and their underpinning principles. Year 2 builds on those, requiring more advanced study of Marketing, Finance and International Business while allowing students to take options in other areas. The final year requires study of strategy, to equip students with the knowledge and models to evaluate the general policy and direction of whole organisations and also enables them to take options in their chosen subject areas at honours level. Students on the programme will also be required to undertake an Entrepreneurship Project to enable them to gain experience of working with external clients in self-managed teams to apply the knowledge gained in elsewhere on the programme.

Educational aims of the programme*

The general ethos of the programme fits with the wider aims of School programmes by encouraging students to link advanced academic study of management disciplines with the practical application of theory.

The aims of the programme are to provide students with:

- a firm understanding of the major areas of business practice to support a coherent understanding of the way in which concepts and models of management theory may be applied;
- an ability to analyse and evaluate business and management problems so that they can reach considered and appropriate conclusions, and can competently communicate the reasoning behind these conclusions;
- an opportunity to attain their full academic potential, within an environment which is constructively critical and where current research of staff members informs their teaching;
- a flexible educational framework that enables students to choose among a range of advanced courses, set in the context of multidisciplinary study where intellectual rigour and analytical skills are rewarded;
- practical experience in the application of knowledge gained at University, develop personal and business skills through project and assessment activities
- opportunities to develop team leadership, presentational, time management and communication skills;
- self-development and assessment competencies necessary for the development of life-long learning.

The programme is designed to prepare students for managerial and administrative careers in industry, commerce and public administration and for professional training in such fields as finance, marketing, consulting, human resource management, and organisational development. Additionally, the transferable skills that the programme develops will support students in progressing to a wide variety of graduate career paths.

Intended learning outcomes * (including teaching, learning and assessment methods, specifying those applicable for interim awards where appropriate)

Units will be studied through a mixture of lectures and tutorials, as specified in the unit templates. Assessment, similarly specified, will be through a variety of forms: individual assignments; group assignments; presentations; exercises; in-class tests, and closed- and open-book examinations.

➤ Knowledge & Understanding:

By the end of the degree, students will be able to display:

- a sound understanding of theories of business and management and be able to appraise models and evidence critically.
- a sound understanding of the external environment (economic, legal, social, political) in which organisations operate, and the relationships between organisations and their stakeholders.

Details of work placements / work-based learning / industrial training / study abroad requirements
There is no placement on the programme.
Details of support available to students (e.g. induction programmes, programme information, resources)
1. An induction programme for students at the start of the first year is organised by the School of Management. This complements a more general induction programme offered by the University. New students are issued with the Programme Handbook. This contains information about academic and pastoral matters: the degree structure and also the Unit Catalogue for the 1st year (the whole unit catalogue can be consulted at any time on the University's web pages); standard information about student support services produced by the University and general advice about the personnel and resources available in the School of Management. They receive the current Guide to Student Support Services. They are introduced to their first-year subjects and teachers and given advice on studying and skills development. 2. Where there are changes to the programme, e.g. in the availability of optional units, the Director of Studies updates those students on the changes. 3. Each student is assigned a personal tutor, normally for the whole of their programme. The tutor's task is to advise tutees on any aspect of the programme, including on choices arising and how to approach their studies. They review individual progress with their tutees on a regular basis, helping students to identify areas of strength and weakness and to devise appropriate strategies to remedy them, advising them to seek further assistance where necessary. They advise tutees on non-academic matters to the best of their ability, drawing attention to more specialised support services on campus where appropriate. They also act as referees for their tutees when asked to do so. 4. All teaching staff are available to see students in regular office hours or by appointment; students are always encouraged to seek advice from academic staff. 5. The Student Experience Officer is also a member of staff who is available for students to consult about academic requirements. Students are encouraged to make use of the Student Experience Officer's knowledge in identifying areas of academic weakness and the resources that are available in the University for support. 6. The School of Management has its own IT resources in addition to computer resources provided through Bath University Computer Services (BUCS). The School's policy is to integrate its support services with those provided centrally by the University. These services provide information, advice and support relating to accommodation, emotional difficulties, assessment of needs and provision of support relating to disability, student funding, general welfare, academic problems, student discipline and complaints, careers, international students, spiritual matters, part time work, security and personal safety. The Students' Union can also provide advocacy for students. More information about these services can be accessed via:

<http://www.bath.ac.uk/students/support/>. There are also Medical and Dental Centres, and a Chaplaincy on campus that are very experienced in meeting the needs of a student population, and a University nursery and vacation play scheme to provide childcare for older children during the school holidays.

Students are encouraged to stay in University halls of residence during their first year and will be supported in their transition into University life and study by Resident Tutors. These are postgraduate students or staff who live in the halls of residence and are responsible for the general welfare, health and safety and discipline of student residents.

Summary of assessment and progression regulations

The programme is fully compliant with the University's New Framework for Assessment: Assessment Regulations (NFAAR). The NFAAR describes the rules for progression from one stage of the programme to the next (including supplementary assessment, and the extent of failure that can be condoned) as well as for the award of degrees. Students taking the programme will be assessed according to these rules; further information about the NFAAR is available at <http://www.bath.ac.uk/registry/nfa/index.htm> - Table 1 attached to the end of this specification indicates which sections of the web-page should be consulted for each stage of the programme.

Table 2, also attached to the end of this specification, describes how the programme is structured in terms of the NFAAR – including stages. Information about Designated Essential Units (DEUs) and Designated Alternative Programmes (DAPs), and the definitions for parts and stages of programmes, are also available in the NFAAR (see Appendix 2: Definitions).

Indicators of quality and standards (e.g. professional accreditation)

(For more general information on each part of the framework, click on the link)

To assure continuing excellence in its quality and standards, the University of Bath has a quality management framework including:

1. A Quality Assurance Code of Practice and associated regulations and policies
2. A learning, teaching and quality committee structure which monitors quality and standards and instigates action for enhancement. For further information:
Governance
Review and Monitoring
3. Staff development arrangements that assist staff in enhancing their own performance as educators, as researchers or as professional support services staff.

Students are involved in many of these processes. The emphasis here is upon the informed student voice - engaging with students as academic citizens to ensure they have opportunities to take an active part in shaping their own learning.

A more detailed overview of the University's Quality Management Framework is set out in a summary document.

BSc in Management (full-time 3 year)

The University's management of its academic standards and quality is subject to external institutional review by the Quality Assurance Agency on a six year cycle. In its 2013 Institutional Review, the QAA confirmed that the University met its expectations for the management of standards, the quality of learning opportunities, and the enhancement of learning opportunities. The University was commended on its provision of information.

Professional bodies such as European Quality Improvement System (EQUIS), require particular standards and content in our programmes so that students exit able to claim professional registration or recognition, enabling them to progress successfully in their subsequent careers. Current professional accreditations are reviewed periodically by the bodies concerned. They are shown against each relevant programme in the prospectus. The full list can be seen here: QA8 Register of Accreditations.
